

AGED PROPHECIES WARMS FOLLOWERS

Urges Adventists to Avoid Rebellious Conduct, Referring to Jones.

Mrs. Ellen G. White, the aged prophetess of the Seventh Day Adventists, sounded a warning to her followers this morning against participation in any rebellion from the established rules of the church or attempts such as that recently made by the Rev. Alonzo T. Jones to act independently of the church's action.

The address of Mrs. White came as a complete surprise to the members of the conference, few of whom believed her to be affected in any way by the Jones controversy, which has been raging throughout the week. Officially, the incident was closed with the address of President Daniels, who defended the action of the conference in declining to admit Mr. Jones as an elder at the present time.

When Mrs. White started her address this morning there was consternation on the faces of many of the delegates, and while she did not mention Mr. Jones' name, it is generally admitted that her statement was directed almost entirely toward him.

"The spirit of pulling away from fellow laborers," she said, "the spirit of disorganization, is in the very air we breathe. By some all efforts to establish order are regarded as dangerous, and the restriction of personal liberty. These deceived souls regard it a virtue to boast of their freedom to think and act independently. It is a grave danger to the prosperity of our work."

"We must move discreetly, sensibly, in harmony with the judgment of God-given counselors."

Mrs. White has prepared an extended paper along these lines which will be presented in the official publication of the conference to be issued tomorrow. A foreign missionary delegate had charge of the early morning session, and department meetings occupied the forenoon up to the beginning of the general conference.

"BIRTHDAY PRICES" TO RULE AT HAHN'S

Big Shoe Houses Will Celebrate
Thirty-third Anniversary of Founding of Firm.

The thirty-third anniversary of the establishment of their successful business is to be celebrated tomorrow by the three shoe houses of William Hahn & Co., at Seventh and K street, 1914-16 Pennsylvania avenue, and 233 Pennsylvania avenue southeast.

Commemorating these thirty-three years of success, the firm will begin tomorrow two weeks of "Birthday Prices" on many of the most popular styles of footwear for the summer. In every way, the "33d Birthday Sale" will be an event of interest to the public buying public and will afford exceptional opportunities for shoppers to rejoice with the well-established firm in commemorating a third of a century's existence.

William Hahn began business in 1876 in a small 15 by 25 foot store at 222 Pennsylvania avenue. An enterprising boy at that time comprised the store force, in addition to Mr. Hahn. Since that day the increase has been gradual but steady, and the firm now requires nearly seventy-five people to conduct its large shoe business.

Messrs. Morris and S. Fred Hahn, brothers of the founder, were let into the business after it became permanently established and in 1899 so large had the firm and its trade grown that it was found necessary to incorporate. Its proprietors now also include Harry W. and Edwin Hahn, in addition to the three brothers named above.

BUSINESS MEN LIKE JUNKET TO OLD POINT

Chamber of Commerce Have Fine Time on Jaunt Down

Brown Falls Off the Vegetable Wagon.

so ashamed of it that he was merely recorded as among the missing until this morning. Then the secret of his guilt leaked out, and he asked that his name be withheld.

The party could not have conducted itself better if it had been in charge of a Sunday school superintendent. Up to this time everyone has been on his good behavior and Tom Grant says that the honor of the organization is being upheld.

This explanation is necessary for several reasons, but particularly because of some pertinent or rather pertinent remarks made last night just before the steamer Southland left its dock in Washington.

Wives Not Pleased.
Several members of the chamber were accompanied to the wharf by their wives, who were not at all satisfied with the explanations of their husbands as to why women would not be permitted on the excursion. They believed that the stag feature of the junket was "cooked up" by the better half.

In self-defense, the husbands took the complaining ones to the wharf and steered them away against the excursion committee, consisting of Dan Bell, Tom Grant, and B. S. Saul, the latter being chairman. Saul explained in detail to each and every one of the women that it was the policy of the chamber to pull off these junkets unhampered by skirts.

In his desire to clear the husbands of deliberately eulogizing their wives out of a good time, he waxed eloquent as to why men should be alone at times and he soon brought down upon his head the maledictions of the fair ones.

The arrangements by the committee, the finely appointed new steamer, and the weather all favored the excursionists. There was enough story telling aboard to make the Lambis Gambol green with envy.

Appetites On The Job.
Everyone took a healthy appetite on the trip, and when Chapin Brown went below he found the Washington party ordering pretty nearly everything on the bill of fare. Brown looked pained, and he proceeded to read his friends a lecture on the evils of gourmandizing.

"The average American," said Brown, "takes sufficiently long to make the boss of the dining room to frown, 'eats too much. He eats too much at all times, and he is constantly abusing his stomach when he eats meat three times a day."

Just to show that he was sincere in his observations, Brown joined a group at one of the tables and ate several dishes of vegetables. At the table was John L. Weaver, with a whole fried chicken in front of him and George Jannus, who had about a pound of porthouse steak on his platter.

Brown disposed of his vegetables in short order, and then looked longingly in the direction of Weaver. Weaver arose to the occasion, and asked if a bit of chicken would interfere with Brown's views on the subject of diet. Brown admitted that chicken was the least harmful of all meats, and would take a small piece. Weaver then cut half his chicken, and Brown disposed of it before Jannus had made any headway on his steak.

Brown Eats Heartily.
In order to save telegraph tolls we may say that the vegetarian ate a goodly portion of the porthouse, shared another's salad, ordered some crackers and cheese, a cup of coffee and a slab of apple pie. He admitted with a self-satisfied smile that there were occasions when it was well to abandon a strict diet, and just to show that he appreciated the situation, purchased cordials for all hands.

Following the return of the Chamber of Commerce excursion to Old Point and back Tuesday, a meeting of the board of directors of the chamber will be held Wednesday afternoon, which will probably be the last meeting of the board until fall. At that time matters are scheduled to come up for discussion, which will be presented at a full meeting of the chamber before the summer session. The meeting of the directors has been called by President Gude for 4:30 o'clock.

He also purchased cordials for all hands.

When some of the older members opined that they would enjoy the breezes while sleeping, Chapin Brown scoffed at them and said that he felt as gay and slittish as the youngest member of the party.

Rudolph a Sleeper.
He sat in at several of the story telling, took a turn or two around the hurricane deck and discovered about 10:30 o'clock that his stomach was full and could not overcome the habit of years and at 11 o'clock his stomachs mingled harmoniously with the steamer's whistle.

Directors Will Meet.

MISS GOULD IS HER TO SOLDIER'S MITE

Wealthy Charity Worker Deeply Touched by Tribute
From Private Who Calls Her a
"Friend to All Soldiers."

Miss Helen Gould, the wealthy heiress and charity worker of New York, has been named as the sole beneficiary in the will of a private soldier who recently died at Fort Sheridan, Illinois.

As a result of the private's bequest, details of which were made public today at the War Department, the military authorities have forwarded to Miss Gould, the soldier's six month pay, his death benefit. This amounts to a little more than $100.

The soldier was Private John James Bartlett, of Battery F, Fifth Field Artillery. He enlisted in December, 1906.

Col. H. L. Rogers, depot paymaster, located in this city, who forwarded the money to Miss Gould, has received from her a personal note of acknowledgment. In this she says that she is deeply touched at such a tribute from a soldier of the army.

Private Bartlett in filling out the slip designating Miss Gould the sole beneficiary in case of his death, described her as "a friend to all soldiers."

It is understood that Miss Gould will apply the bequest toward her continual campaign to improve the life of enlisted men in navy and army. Miss Gould, who is noted for her aid to the United Women's Christian Associations and similar charities, has devoted a portion of her life time and money for years to making army life better for those in the ranks.

LIFE OF GODLINESS THE BEST SUCCESS

Rev. Dr. John A. Conway
Delivers Sermon to Georgetown Students.

In an eloquent baccalaureate sermon to the graduating class of Georgetown University at Dahlgren Chapel this morning, the Rev. John A. Conway, S. J., held up before his pupils the great beauty of the doctrine of rights as taught by the church and opposed to the doctrine of success as taught by the world.

He insisted that the best success in business, in politics or professional life is as nothing to the satisfaction when the end comes to a life of right living.

The Rev. Dr. Conway took for his subject the motto "Noblesse Oblige," declaring that he who has been elevated above his fellows should surpass them in great service to the world. He said this motto may well find expression in that nobility of the highest kind as found in the word "Christian," and that men who are filled with the spirit of self-denial, if ever, seek after the gaudy tinsel of earthly success.

Christian History.
He held up the glorious history of Christianity for 2,000 years and of the trials and sufferings of the early Christians and the victories that were theirs.

"Men trace back their ancestry to great warriors and statesmen. They glory in having the same blood as princes and generals, but we can trace our ancestry as Christians back to the very feet of the Son of God. We are the heirs of all those to whom is due all that is best in the history and civilization of the world today. It was due to them and their teaching that the true doctrine of the equality of man was first revealed to the world."

"The only remedy for all the ills of the soul."

Giver of All.
"It was by them and their teachings that woman was raised from the earth to the high place in which she is today. It was from their teaching that we have an astounding world first learned that work and toil originally imposed as a curse was a sacred thing—sacred as prayer itself."

"I know not what your future will be, but I know that you will be faithful to the principles that you have received from 2,000 years of Christian history. You will have your trials and difficulties and temptations, but the church today offers the only remedy for all the ills of the soul."

TOLEDO, Ohio, May 29.—As the result of an explosion of a gasoline tank on the launch Charles B. on the Maumee river here, three men were badly burned today. One of them may die.

Fred Paulhaber was adjusting the engine when the explosion occurred, and his body was enveloped in flames. That he did not die instantly was due to the coolness and quickness of his friends. They sank the boat and swam ashore.

EXHORTS GRADUATES TO HOLD TO CHRIST

The Rev. William Turner, of Catholic University,
Preaches Baccalaureate Sermon to Class at Trinity.
Warns Against Present Day Tendencies.

"There is but one philosophy of life. That is the teaching of God. It is the only doctrine of happiness, the only philosophy that can conserve your ideals of life."

In a brilliant burst of oratory, the result of years of training as a speaker and from the depths of a warm, sympathetic interest, the Rev. Dr. William Turner, professor of philosophy at the Catholic University of America, addressed the graduates of Trinity College and a host of their friends in his baccalaureate sermon at the college this morning. The exercises in O'Connor Hall, marked the opening of commencement week, wherein will be centered the interest of the entire Catholic population of this city.

At 10 o'clock this morning a pontifical high mass was celebrated in the chapel by the Rt. Rev. Philip J. Garrigan, Bishop of Sioux City, Iowa, and former vice rector of the Catholic University.

He was assisted by the Rev. John W. Melody, while the deacons of honor were the Rev. Dr. Thomas E. Shields and the Rev. Dr. John W. Spensley; deacons of the mass, the Rev. Dr. Charles F. Aiken and the Rev. Dr. John D. Maguire; masters of ceremonies, the Rev. George A. Dougherty and the Rev. William J. Kerby.

Music By Choir.
Music was furnished by the chancel choir of Trinity, and several of the students of the university.

In the sermon in which Dr. Turner exhorted his hearers to lay aside the temptations of the world for a life of purity, goodness, and self denial, he referred to the present age as one of feverish unrest. The lack of understanding of and adherence to proper Christian doctrine, he said, is sapping the foundation of society and uprooting the moral principles which should guide our public life.

"The world today," he declared, "in deploring the commercial spirit which rules the time, is actuated by motives of opportunism and utilitarianism. We are hearing preached the doctrine of the four horsemen of the Christian doctrine of Providence. It is a Godless, cheerless view of life, which takes thought feverishly for present needs and nervously calculates for the future. This is the doctrine that is sapping the foundations of society."

The played lied in a return to the simple faith and confidence in God which springs from the realization that God is the Father of all things. The confidence and truthfulness of a little child is the attitude of mind and heart that best becomes a Christian.

"I earnestly beseech you, you graduates of the class of 1909, to take as the motto of your life the words of the apostle: 'Hold fast to Christ, to whom all things are possible.'"

Fat Is Out of Style

To paraphrase Caesar's remark, the directorate gown came—was seen—and has conquered. So fat ladies are reduced, so to speak, to the necessity of either reducing at a very rapid rate or eliminating themselves from public view until the fashion dies out. Otherwise they risk being ridiculous.

Since many fat ladies will not eliminate themselves, however, but, per contra, will insist on wearing the curves, now no course is open to this well-meaning scribe other than to tell them how they may eliminate the fat. What is there, then, that reduces fat safely? What pleasant inexpensive article is there on druggists' shelves that can reduce a pound a day without causing wrinkles or stomach ache? What can the pharmacist offer as an improvement over scanty vitamins or terrible walks without breakfast? Is there anything pleasant to take and inexpensive to buy that will reduce one uniformly, quietly and innocently, thirty pounds a month? Here is the answer: Either write the Marmola Company, Dept. 21, Detroit, Mich., or ask your local druggist for Marmola Prescription Tablets, and for 75 cents they or he will give you one large case of these safe fat reducers, containing so generous a quantity of tablets that sometimes one case only is needed to produce the desired results. Can you match that for a simple solution of your problem?
